Mr. Daniel Doherty

Dear Dan:

The County Donegal Association of Greater Boston at its last regular monthly meeting on Wednesday evening, June 20, 1962, unanimously voted to sincerely thank you for your untiring work in relation to the Hugh Farren Memorial Foot Bridge on Old Colony Avenue, South Boston, Mass.

We are fully aware that you worked persistently for many years to have that foot bridge named memorially in honor of Brother Hugh Farren, who gave his life in the Second World War for his adopted country. You never gave up your efforts to have the bridge named in his honor. Finally your efforts were crowned with success, and the bridge was named for Hugh Farren.

The County Donegal Association profoundly appreciates this remarkable achievement of yours and extends to you its heartfelt gratitude. This accomplishment does honor to a patriotic County Donegal man, who was a past vice-president of our association.

Fraternally yours,

John P. McEneeny, Corr. Sec.

White Fuel Annexes Crown In Nu Boston Basketball League

The White Fuel burners, by far the class of the New Boston Basketball League, got a bit of a scare from the Boys' Club in the semi-finals, but then swept the finals from the Mohawks at M Street Playground Courts last week to take the crown in the league's first season of competition.

Jim Crowe's league champs, led by Jim Kinney, "Taz" Ford, John Joyce, Leo Fuce, Brian Wallace and Mike Griffin, were just too much for the small but scrappy Mohawks.

In the semi-finals, the Boys' Club and Gillette fought the finalists right down to the wire. Joe Mason had his Gillette team honed mighty sharp as the season closed and nearly edged out the Mohawks. It looked for a time as if the Boys' Club might knock the favored White Fuel out in the semi-finals, but the Burners bounced back to take the important 2.

Ray Flynn, league commissioner, was pleased with the outcome of the playoffs, believing that the White Fuel team's hard work and long practice merited the crown.

This is the first publication of the "Most Valuable Player Award," but it probably comes as no surprise that Marty House was selected as the winner of the Connie Lynch-Jack Mahoney Memorial Trophy, emblematic of the league's MVP.

Funeral Services On Tuesday For Veteran Of Indian Wars

The funeral of John B. Crump of 106 H street, believed to be New England's last veteran of the Indian Wars, who took part in the Battle of Wounded Knee in N. Dakota in 1891 in which Indian Chief Sitting Bull was killed, took place on Tuesday morning, with a solemn requiem mass in the Gate of Heaven Church at 9 o'clock.

Burial was in St. Joseph's Cemetery, W. Roxbury. Mr. Crump, who was 95, died on Friday at the Veterans Administration Hospital, Jamaica Plain.

He came to America from his native County Kerry, Ireland, at the age of 15. Shortly after arriving, he enlisted in the U.S. Army for a five-year term. He was a member of Company E, 17th Infantry, in the winter of 1891 when he and the rest of his battalion were sent by rail from Fort Wingate, New Mexico, to Pierre, S. Dakota, to pursue Sitting Bull.

In a recent interview, Mr. Crump said that he signed with the Army to go West "for adventure." After his tour with the Army, he returned to Boston to work most of his life as a waiter in several city hotels. Last year a move to honor Mr. Crump for his part in the Indian Wars was started by Oliver E. Meadows, staff director of the House Committee on Veterans' Affairs in Washington. Mr. Crump said he was not interested.

"I'm perfectly happy as I am," he said. "I have no ambitions to visit the White House and stuff like that. I know all the Kennedys anyway."

Many South Boston Residents Serve On Large Committee

Lithuanians from seven Greater Boston parishes are expected to flock to Brockton on Labor Day to attend one of the highlight events during the year of Lithuanian social activities.

This is the field day program sponsored by the Sisters of Jesus Crucified on the convent grounds of their Alms-house on Thatcher street, where more than 1,000 persons will gather for a day of special programs, according to Hyppolyte Moncevic of Brockton, general chairman.

Throughout the Archdiocese, he said, Lithuanians for many years have recorded huge attendances here on Labor Day in supporting the Sisters in the care of the sick and aging, teaching in local parochial schools, and conducting retreats for women and girls.

South Boston residents serving on the field day committee include Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Nevaras, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Louis Bazzinotti, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Shirko, Mr. and Mrs. William Casey, Mr. and Mrs. John Shilala, Mr. and Mrs. Al Kieponis, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Long, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Venis, and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Chapin.

Managers Select Top Players For Labor Day Exhibition

An all-star team from the South Boston Connie Mack League, chosen by ballot by the team managers, will travel to Waltham on Monday for an exhibition game against the state-champion Waltham stars. The game will be played at Bicycle Park, starting at 2 p.m.

Rules of Connie Mack League baseball do not permit use of an all-star team in the National Tournament, so the team was selected for the purpose of honoring outstanding players.

Jim Dennis, Waltham president, has had representative teams that have beaten South Boston in four games, and this could be a chance for revenge for Southie. Mr. Dennis has also promised to arrange for Major League scouts to attend, as the top young athletes from both South Boston and Waltham will be on deck for action.

Players chosen for the South Boston all-star team include:

Bob and Rich Sullivan, Phil Aibano, and Bill Sances of St. Christopher; Dennis Coyne, Leo Fuce, Bob Lerro, Tim Kerins, and Bob Harrington of the C.J. Calnan Club; Larry Litchfield, Ed Smith, Jack Farrell, and Bob Dunkle of the Blues; and Jim O'Day and Joe Presente of the Angels. All of the managers of the League, Bill Frechette, Jack Eustace, Jim Coyle, and Chuck Wright will act as coaches. (in uniform) and President Bill Marino will manage.

All of the players selected to this team will receive handsome certificates that they have been singled out as the ones that all of the managers would like to have playing for them.

Boys who are to play should be at the ballfield at Marine Park by noon to get their uniforms for the game. A motorcade will leave at approximately 12:30 P.M. Remember that the game will be at 2 P.M. at Waltham, Bicycle Park. The best baseball players of Connie Mack will be in action.

Coyne will start for South Boston, and Aibano and Fuce will also pitch two innings apiece. A home run contest between South Boston and Waltham, as well as a footrace are planned as part of the festivities. We feel that we can match Mareno and Larson of Waltham with Smith and Sullivan in homers, but that no-one can catch the Sullivans or Joe Presente in a race.

Come on over to Waltham for your holiday. Relax and watch these fine athletes, and what shapes up to be a great ballgame, as well as a grudge match, because it was Waltham that kept South Boston out of the State and Regional tournaments, by the margin of one run.

Labor Day, 1963

We are on the threshold of another Labor Day. And a vast change has taken place in this institution and the cause it stands for in the decades that have passed since its first observance. Labor has grown strong — stronger, very likely, than its leaders of another and simpler age could have imagined.

Nowhere else in the world has labor earned and gained so many material benefits as it has in the United States. The "blue collar" man has caught his "white collar" counterpart in earning and living standards and in many instances passed him by. Labor can take well justified pride in this achievement.

But the high status of labor, and labor's power, involve another element. That element is responsibility. Labor can no longer be content with just pursuing its differences with management. It has another and a larger duty. That is to help provide the quality of industrial statesmanship that is so urgently needed if this country is to maintain its position in an increasingly competitive world.

Next September 2, deserved honors will be paid to labor. May it go on and earn, through wise accomplishment, still higher honors.

If success turns your head, you're facing in the wrong direction.

Aid Friends - Then Stop

Looking back to the beginning of foreign aid, and to the idealistic yet practical principles on which it was postulated, gives one something of an Alice-in-Wonderland feeling.

The start is found in the Marshall Plan. The idea was to use American resources to help rebuild war-shattered nations, and to bring about a peaceful, cooperative world based upon free institutions — including free popular elections.

The tragedy is that many billions of our foreign aid have been used for very different ends. It has gone to dictatorships, in which the people have no voice at all in affairs. Worst of all, it has gone, in instance after instance, to members of or sympathizers with the communist bloc. Thus, our own dollars have been used to strengthen our enemies — and even to buy them advanced weapons of war.

One can understand that foreign aid distributions of billions of dollars are often wasteful and misdirected. That is inevitable in so vast an undertaking. But there can be no excuse for employing it to our own disadvantage and danger. A drastic change in policy has long been in order. Let us aid our friends, and stop right there.

We have freedom of the press and we must keep that right. In freedom, though, there is duty. It is the duty of the press to keep people informed. . . . In the long run a free press is better than a muzzled one. It has to remain that way no matter how distasteful some news events are handled. — Canton (N.C.) Enterprise.

Since the general civilization of mankind I believe there are more instances of the abridgement of the freedom of the people by gradual and silent encroachments of those in power than by violent and sudden usurpations. — James Madison

Need For Frequent Immunization Stressed By Medical Foundation

Does this sound like something you've heard many, many times before?

Well, you have; and you'll hear it again and again.

Despite all the combined efforts of the medical profession, public health officials, school officials, voluntary groups and many others, there still are countless millions of Americans who are facing unnecessary risk of disease, crippling and even death — simply because they have procrastinated about immunizations for themselves and their families. Young children, however, have a better record of immunizations than their parents or older brothers or sisters.

There are vaccines against a number of communicable diseases now readily available.

There have been no cases of smallpox in the United States for several years, but there still is smallpox in much of the world, and each year or two this nation has a smallpox scare from an infected traveler returning from abroad. Revaccination for smallpox is recommended at three-to-five year intervals. How long since you've renewed your protection?

There still are cases of tetanus, or lockjaw, every year. Almost every one is unnecessary. Tetanus toxoid offers excellent protection. Tetanus is a serious infection that often proves fatal. It's much too serious to take a chance.

Thanks to the vaccines, poliomyelitis is now down to a few hundred cases a year. But polio is still present in the United States, and is still a potential crippler or killer. Despite some eight years of steady campaigning for polio vaccinations, there still are millions of Americans unprotected. Have you had your polio vaccine? If so, have you had a booster lately?

Diphtheria is still dangerous and by no means wiped out, despite the fact that a vaccine has been available for years. Whooping cough is so common in childhood that most parents don't consider it serious. But whooping cough can be dangerous. It also can be prevented by vaccination.

Vaccines proved to be effective against measles have recently been developed. Ask your doctor about protection against measles for your children.

With the approach of the fall season and the time for schools to reopen, The Medical Foundation, a United Fund agency, suggests that now is a good time to check up on your family's vaccination status. If ANYONE in the household is lacking any of the essential immunizations, see your doctor and bring your family's protection up to date.

Playground Youngsters Help Out 'Jimmy Fund'

The children of the C. J. Lee Playground gave an interesting variety show last Friday afternoon and as a result, the Jimmy Fund is richer by $1.09. It was their own idea and Mrs. Montanino gave them an assist, loaning her back yard and back porch.

Jeanne Marie Andrews, 10, sponsored the show and introduced the performers. Star turns were given by Kathie Robinson, Pat Fish and Pat Montanino. Stanley Musgrave, custodian at Lee Playground, gave a generous bit to help the fund.

Editor of the Tribune:

The members, staff and parents of the St. Vincent's Jay Jays Drum and Bugle Corps would like to take this opportunity to thank the many people who, through their tireless efforts, enabled the corps to attain the CYO Class C Championship in its first year of competition and on the second anniversary of its existence.

Many thanks are due also to their instructors who taught the children all they know and made them a first-class unit, second to none.

Finally, special thanks to the publisher of the South Boston Tribune, Mr. Harry Shepard. For the Corps Mrs. Marion Leary General Manager

Editor of the Tribune:

The Daniel E. O'Connell Football Club wishes to thank the people of South Boston and other nearby communities for the wonderful response to its sports night and also for the purchase of drawing tickets.

A special vote of thanks goes to Babe Parilli and Charley Long of the Patriots, George Clemens and Joe Lukis of Boston College and to George McCarthy. We will never forget the way Atty. John J. Moakley, the emcee, handled the introductions.

To the Hood Milk people, the Patriots, Miller's High Life, Tom Lyons, and Will McDonough of the Globe, again, thank you.

The winner of the drawing was ticket No. 1810, drawn by Babe Parilli, and held by Lee Horgan of 204 N street. We hope to see you at M street for our home games.

The Committee.

Remind Dog Owners Children's Pets Don't Belong In Schoolyard

Dog owners today were reminded by Mr. David S. Claffin, Executive Vice-President of the Mass. S P C A of the serious problems which can arise when dogs follow their young masters to school; and Mr. Claffin urged that dogs be kept home until after children had gone to school.

Schoolyards are not the proper place for dogs. In all the excitement and confusion of a yard filled with strange children and perhaps other dogs, even a well-mannered pet might be tempted to run and jump on children and possibly to get into fights with other dogs. Many children are not accustomed to dogs and would be badly frightened by this sort of experience. There is also the possibility that, on the way home, the dog will be hit by a car.

Part of a child's responsibility to his dog is to see that it does not become a nuisance to other people. To help protect the dog's reputation, the young owner should be impressed with the reasons for seeing that his dog stays at home during school hours.

THIS WEEK IN THE IRISH PROVINCES

DUBLIN--Every Irishman and woman who loves freedom should look to Kilmainham Jail as a memory of Ireland's patriot dead said Mr. J. Cunningham, President Sean MacDermott GAA Club, Dublin, when he handed over a check for a hundred guineas to the Kilmainham Jail Restoration Fund.

MAYO--Young Ireland represented by thousands of school going boys and girls, many of them in school uniform, gathered at Knock Shrine, Co. Mayo, for the annual Children's Day pilgrimage. The guests were welcomed by the Archbishop of Dublin, Most Rev. Dr. McQuaid.

OFFALY--Police activity continued for several days last week in Banagher, Offaly, following the driving away of 30 head of cattle from an island in the River Shannon and the dismantling of a bridge there.

WATERFORD--President de Valera will visit Waterford next week for ceremonies to mark the bi-centenary of the birth of Brother Edmund Ignatius Rice who founded the Irish Christian Brothers in that city.

DUBLIN--There was a big representation from all over Ireland at the Dominican pilgrimage which visited Fatima Shrine last week.

DUBLIN--The seventh annual Mass for West Indian students in Ireland was attended by more than 150 religious and students at the church attached to St. Mary's College, Rathmines.

DUBLIN--The Irish Medical Association has made representations to the Minister for Justice asking higher fees for doctors for carrying out post-mortem examinations and subsequent attendance at inquests.

DUBLIN--There were 75 fatal road accidents in the Republic of Ireland during the first four months of 1962, a drop of six compared with the same period of 1961.

DUBLIN--Traditional musicians and dancers gave a rousing welcome to 250 American delegates and their wives when they flew into Dublin Airport for the four-day Variety Club International Convention.

Boston, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh were among the American cities represented in the delegation.

LOUTH--Thirty-one members of the Dutch Housewives Assocn. arrived in Termonfeckin, Co. Louth for a week's visit to Ireland. They planned a visit to the Dublin Mansion House during their tour.

Bouquet Given Irish Workers

IRISH workmen are as good as you'll find anywhere in the world—at least, any part of the world where I've been," That's the view of Mr. Owen O'Toole, Wicklow-born general foreman of Dublin's new Liberty Hall.

And Mr. O'Toole has worked in many parts of the world since the day in 1945 in the Curragh when, for the last time, he took off his Engineers' tunic with the sergeant's stripes.

In fact, the Liberty Hall building is only the second job he has taken on in Ireland since then. The rest of the time he has spent on buildings in places as far apart as Kuwait, Singapore and Nigeria. Did he like working abroad? "Very much," he said "Especially in Africa, where any Irishman is made welcome immediately, thanks to the good work of our missionaries.

But Mr. O'Toole, married, with two daughters, 14 and 14 months, is glad to be home.

One of the chief reasons is that he can once again follow the fortunes of his own Gaelic football team, Wicklow, where some of his thirteen brothers and sisters still live and where his mother runs the local dance hall.

The men under him will have little cause for complaint, because Mr. O'Toole is a foreman of the future, with the right ideas on labour.

"The old days of the foreman who got the work done by merely driving his men are gone," he says. "I try to interest my men in the work.

Dr. T. Maher of Cambridge sees off his old friend Professor Dudley Edwards of the National University of Ireland as he left for home after a lecture tour of the U.S.A.

Going On Visit To Dublin? Then Watch Where You Step

THE clatter of pneumatic drills will sound in O'Connell St. in the first week of June as Dublin Corporation begin one of their biggest road-repair jobs for some time. There will be noise, dust, traffic troubles and LOTS inconvenience.

O'Connell St. traders will hear this news with dismay for trade will be lost in one of the best trading months of the tourist year.

Henry St. for the past month is a good example of what is to come, although in Henry St. the workmen operated in a narrower thoroughfare.

Primarily, said a Corporation spokesman, the O'Connell St. work will be to remove the last of the tram tracks.

Asked why it was proposed to carry out the work in the tourist season, he said that after consultation with the police they selected the period of June and July as the most suitable.

"When is a suitable time?" he asked. "We can't dig up the roads at Christmas or during the times of the sales, the Horse Show or the Spring Show, during Rugby internationals or All-Ireland football and hurling finals."

When it was suggested to him that winter would be the most suitable, he replied: "The weather is bad and days are short. It would take a good deal longer to do the job."

He said that the sides of the street, would be re-surfaced separately, and the Gardai would arrange to have traffic going in both directions on one side of the street.

"Services such as water, gas, telephone and electric cables will have to be inspected," he said.

The street will have a concrete base with tar macadam on top.

New Motel For Cork

Work is due to start shortly on Cork City's third motel. The new motel which is being built for a Dublin self-drive car firm is of the chalet type and will be erected near Cork airport.

Work is already well advanced on a 96-bedroom motel on the old Muskerry railway station, Western Road, which is being built by Irish and Inter-Continental Hotels Ltd.

A second site was purchased a few weeks ago at Tivoli about two miles from the city where the erection of a 100 bedroom motel for Irish Cinemas (Odeon) Ireland Ltd., will take place.

Irish Trade Unions Want Probe On Price Increases

The Dublin Council of Trade Unions is to set up a special committee to investigate increases in the price of consumer goods, said Mr. Patrick Donegan, when he spoke at the final rally of the Connolly Commemoration Week in Dublin.

Every possible publicity would be given by the committee to any proposed price increases where they were found to be exorbitant, he said.

Remarking that as soon as workers got a new wage round increase the benefits were swallowed up by increased prices of commodities, Mr. Donegan said the blame for the rising cost of living was then placed on the workers.

If the workers were to cooperate in bringing about increased production bringing about increased production they expected a share in the benefits. Increased production should not give the green light for price increases.

The committee organising Connolly Week this year felt that the celebrations in recent years had not been worthy of the name of Connolly, said Mr. Donegan. In honouring Connolly they remembered Larkin and others who laid the foundation stone on which the movement, as they knew it, had been built.

The life of Connolly was a story of vision, struggle, sacrifice and accomplishment in which they should all take the utmost pride. Connolly and Larkin, he said, had not only to fight against hunger and want but for the right of workers to be members of a trade union.

Mr. W. J. Fitzpatrick (President of the Irish Congress of Trade Unions) said that the strength of the unions had been consolidated a few years ago through reunification and the establishment of a single national authority in the shape of the Irish Congress of Trade Unions.

Earlier, anniversary Mass was celebrated in the Church of St. Mary of the Angels, Church St., by Father Virgilius, O.F.M. Cap., and a special Service was conducted in St. George's Church, Temple St., by Rev. Canon R. J. Kerr, M.A.

Thousands of workers, representing the various unions, then assembled at Church St. and marched to Arbour Hill Cemetery where wreaths were laid on Connolly's grave by Mr. John Conroy, General President, I.T.G.W.U., and Mr. Donegan.

A decade of the Rosary was recited by Mr. George O'Malley, I.T.G.W.U. executive. The Last Post was sounded by buglers of the I.T.G.W.U. band, and the flag of the Citizen Army dipped in salute. Members of the 26th Battalion, F.C.A., in Citizen Army uniform, fired a volley over the grave.

Watertown Hibernians Report Their Activities

There was great rejoicing at the Division quarters recently due to the fact that our cribbage team came from behind to win the second half of the Watertown Fraternal Cribbage league and then went on to win the championship of the league last week defeating the F.O.E. team after a hard fought match.

Co-Captains Dave Keefe and Earle Igo deserve a lot of credit for the manner in which they directed the team on the road to victory. Congratulations men on a job well done.

The Hibernian team which will represent the Town of Watertown in the new Carlings Baseball Inter-city League have been holding practice at Victory Field these last few evenings under the direction of Bro. John Maguire, and have shown great promise.

THE CELTIC CROSS

Shamrocks and clay pipes, leprechauns and harps -- all signify that the great day is at hand. Another symbol of St. Patrick's adopted land and beloved people; perhaps the most appropriate of all, is the Celtic Cross.

On no single object has more artistry been lavished than the cross. To the pagan Roman it is signified ignominious death, but Christ made it a symbol of triumph and salvation. The most familiar type is the Latin cross, next would probably be the square Greek cross; but there are many variations such as the X-shaped St. Andrew's cross, the Maltese cross, the German swastika and the French cross of Lorraine.

It wasn't until the seventh century that the figure of Christ was superimposed to form the Crucifix. Whatever its form, the cross has become synonymous with Christianity. And Christianity is certainly concomitant with Ireland.

When the Celtic cross originated we are not certain. However, archeologists date the earliest about the eighth century -- almost 300 years after the coming of Patrick. These are known as "the standing high crosses" erected throughout Ireland in ecclesiastical centers, frequently memorials of saints and kings. These stone crosses, many of which are still extant, were also used to mark the limits of monastic enclosures.

All were made of sand stone beautifully ornamented with scrolls or sculptured figures. At first only the bases were decorated, but later all sides of the shafts and crosses bars were adorned. These crosses, usually about 20 feet high, are said to be the most illuminating examples of Christian art existing outside the Roman empire. They prove that even without cities, commerce and communication, and with a central unifying state something artistic could and did flourish for a time.

It does seem strange that the crosses came into being at a time when Ireland was being pillaged by the Vikings. During this period of invasion and occupation, which lasted for 200 years, all the high Celtic crosses were created. Perhaps they demonstrate a subtle form of resistance since a stone cross is not conveniently burned or stolen.

In form the crosses do not vary much; always the basic Latin cross ornamented with an interior circle or halo which is said to symbolize eternity and the perfection of the Trinity. However, the sculptured panels are unusually varied.

There are old Testament figures such as Adam and Eve, Noah and three children in the fiery furnace as well as numerous New Testament scenes such as the Baptism of Christ, the miracle of the loaves and fishes, and the soldiers guarding the tomb. Some of the sculptured figures are Celtic kings and druid priests reminiscent of early pagan history. Of course there are figures of St. Patrick and Columcille and other Irish saints.

Not that Irishmen need more to be proud of, but I wonder how many realize that from the sixth to the ninth century Ireland stood at the head of European culture and that the stone Celtic crosses are among the most remarkable manifestations of medieval art.

Oddly enough the Celtic cross was not used in any other representative art forms for many centuries. Today, however, you will find Celtic crosses wherever there are Irishmen. Visit St. Patrick's, St. Bridget's, or St. Kevin's Church and somewhere you will see a Celtic cross -- perhaps atop the steeple or maybe on the vestments. Look closely at the chalice elevated by an Irish priest and you may see a tiny Celtic cross made from the gold of his mother's wedding ring. 'Tis an old Irish custom.

The Celtic cross is a most appropriate symbol because it represents the golden age of Irish culture and because it signifies a nation which was never really conquered by the sword, but willingly yielded to the cross.

Irish Franciscan Brothers Benefit

A committee under the chairmanship of Patrick Curry and friends of the Irish Franciscan Brothers are sponsoring a dance at the Bradford Hotel, 275 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass., on Friday Evening, May 25. The proceeds from this Benefit Dance will help finance the training of young men for their great apostolate of education in America and Africa.

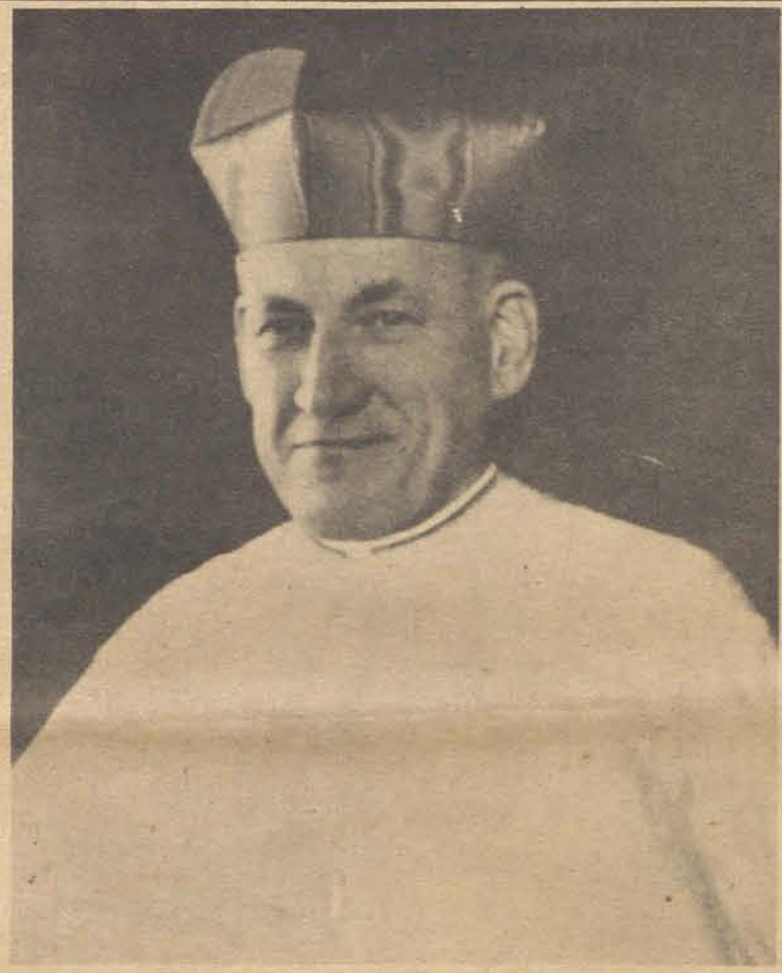

The Franciscan Brothers have monasteries in Galway, Mayo, Roscommon and Co. Offaly and due to a significant increase in vocations they had to purchase Pilltown House, Drogheda, known now as St. Francis Scholastic, where the young men are trained. The Institute of Franciscan Brothers has been expanding rapidly in recent years. In addition to its houses in Ireland, it has opened missions in North and South Nigeria and now in Bamenda, Cameroons, Africa.

The committee assures everyone an enjoyable evening of dancing and good entertainment.

Copy of letter sent on May 14th to John P. Lynch, Chairman of the Democratic State Committee by former Lt. Governor-Atty. General, Francis E. Kelly. Kelly as Lt. Governor had his bill to abolish the Pre-Primary Conventions passed by the Mass. Legislature after he had defeated the choices publican Pre-Primary Convention for Lt. Governor (Philip Phibbin D. and Leverett Saltonstall R.) Kelly's law was abolished in 1963 and the Convention system was restored despite Kelly's protests.

Dear Chairman Lynch:
Two years ago, I sent a communication to the Co-Chairman of the 1960 Democratic Pre-Primary Convention (Senate Speaker John Powers and House Speaker John Thompson) recommending that they let the appointed Delegates adopt a good platform, then add-livan, Theresa Laffey, Ann Sullivan, Marie Roach, Tom and Jim Cremmins, Paddy O'Malley, Chris Moran and Martin Higgins.

Dail Survey

should be no ceiling in the health services but everybody except those on social welfare benefits, or farmers with land of very low valuation, should contribute to the scheme.

Mr. G. Colley (F.F.) said state help should be given to alcoholics. It would not be unreasonable to estimate the incidence of alcoholism here at five per cent of all who took a drink. This would be in the region of 50,000. The misery, hardship and degradation coming as a result of alcoholism in the country was appalling.

There should be outpatients' treatment, following the same lines as Alcoholics Anonymous, who had succeeded where medical science and religion had failed.

Sir A. Esmonde (F.G.) said many of the speakers had been unrealistic in their criticism of the action taken by the Minister in dealing with lung cancer. The Minister had stated the main causes for coronary thrombosis was an increasing variation in the types of diets, and the lack of exercise, and he fully concurred with this opinion. Another pre-disposing cause of lung cancer was diesel fumes.

He suggested the Minister should approach manufacturers to see what could be done to introduce a "trap" in cigarettes, to collect the nicotine, as had been done in other countries. This would help to a great extent to lessen the danger of contracting the disease.

The Minister should consider bringing in compulsory smallpox vaccination for children.

Mr. P.J. Burke (F.F.) said he would like to see the Voluntary Health Board going further. At present, if one had a medical history, the Board was not too anxious to take one on.

Delegates cock-tails, cigars, sandwiches, pickles and ice cream, give them some entertainment and send them home to their families. Do not allow them to usurp the powers or dictate to the self-thinking, un-bossed, intelligent Democratic or Independent voters on their Primary Day, September 18th.

As a long-time, consistent public foe of these Politically-Bossed Monstrosities called Pre-Primary Conventions, I ask you not to permit these self appointed Delegates to vote for the four most important State-wide offices, namely, U.S. Senator, Governor, Lt. Governor and Atty. General. This can be done legally.

I again predict that the rank and file of our Democratic and Independent voters will resent any interference or dictation by professional politicians, cliques and appointed Delegates and will show their resentment at their coming September 18th Primary and November 6th Election.

Permit the many good Democratic candidates for these 4 important public offices to go without any handicap direct to the voters at the People's September 18th Primary. To do otherwise will greatly damage the chances for any Democratic victory in November for these four important offices.

Consistently yours,
Francis E. Kelly
(Former Lt. Governor-Atty. General)

New York, N.E. Teams Split Hurling, Football Matches

By JOHN WALSH

The Boston and New England Gaelic Athletic Assn. officially opened the 1962 playing season with about 2,000 fans watching two of the best hurling and football games that we have had in Boston over the past two years.

The weather was just about ideal, with a strong breeze blowing straight down the field.

The hurling opened the afternoon's program. N.Y. Galway hurlers won the toss and elected to play with the breeze. Mr. Hausmann, Ruppert Breweries, threw in the ball.

The game started at a terrific pace with the New England selection fighting hard to offset the wind advantage plus the superb ball handling by the N.Y. Galwegians. Sweeney the great center half back for Galway was having his finest hour, breaking up play after play. He was ably supported by his two team mates on the halfback line, Kelly and Forde.

Hynes was invincible at full back making long clearances to put his team on the attack.

The Boston boys were equal to the terrific pace set by Galway and fought back with great determination, never yielding once during the first half.

At half time the score stood: Galway, New York--6 goals 3 points.

New England Selection--1 goal 3 points.

Two. On the resumption of play the Boston hurlers staged a real come back. However, they had eight wides in the first seven minutes. The attack really started at midfield with the two Egan's doing a terrific job. Martin Kelly was the man of the hour for Boston in defense. Dick Stanley at full back held the Galway attack while Duggan did a fine job in goal.

The Boston attack was in full swing with Tony Stack, Mike Farran, Tony Riley, Derry O'Connor and Matty Duggan all on a scoring spree.

With less than 3 minutes to go Boston had whittled down the Galway lead to 4 points.

The final score: N.Y. Galway 6 goals 4 points.
New England Selected-- 4 goals 4 points.

The football game was a thriller from start to finish. Cork from New York with a terrific win over Kerry 2 weeks previously in N.Y. started favorites. However, New England Selected has a great team --the pick of four great clubs, Hartford, Kerry, Springfield and Erin Hope.

New England Selected won the toss and played with the breeze. Cork scored a quick goal in the second minute but Boston replied with three quick points in the twentieth minute. New England Selected came through with a goal two minutes later and then notched a point. Cork scored another goal and followed up with a point.

Tony Stack played his greatest game since coming to Boston; also John Teahan, his brother Micky, Sean Brosnan was great, also Pat Meade, Joe Courtney, Mike Murphy, Mike Murphy, Mike Foley; his brother Jimmy.

At the end of the first half the score was:

Cork, N.Y.-- 2 goals 1 point
New England Sel--1 goal 5 points

With just a slim lead things did not look good for Boston or resumption of play. Cork, N.Y., with a great football machine, were expected to lead a devastating attack on the Boston goal.

New England Selected made an important switch when Kerry Jimmy Foley at the start of the second half. Foley had retired through injuries.

Walsh, Paddy Clarke and Mickey Teahan completely silenced the Cork attack.

Then New England went on a great scoring spree, to leave the final tally:

New England Sel--2 goals 14 points
Cork, N.Y.--2 goals 4 points.

"Miss Irish America", a contest sponsored by Bill Fuller, prominent Irish and American ballroom owner, to find a typical Irish-American beauty entered its last phase when the lovely winner, Miss Collette Durkin, left for a two-week personal appearance tour of Ireland. Miss Durkin, (19) a native of Pittsburgh boasts that her grandfather came from County Mayo and her grandmother from County Cork.

Strike Irish Race Industry

Stable hands employed at The Curragh racing stables are on strike.

The decision was arrived at in Newbridge when, after discussion lasting three hours on a pay proposal from the employers, the Curragh racehorse trainers, a big majority of stable hands voted in favour of strike action. Pickets will be placed on the stables and most of the horses in training will be affected by a stoppage of normal exercise and training procedure.

It is also very probable that the strike will mean that the next Curragh meeting, and including the races for the opening classics of the year, the 2,000 and 1,000 Guineas, will have to be postponed.

The striking stable hands are members of the I.T.G.W.U., and C.I.E. horse box drivers are unlikely to pass the pickets so that the present system of transporting runners to meetings is also likely to cease.

The dispute, which has been going on for some weeks, concerns retrospective pay. The men agreed to accept a wage increase but insisted that it be made retrospective to November while the employers agreed to make it retrospective to March only.

Mayors Declare Gaelic Day

Mayor Collins is co-chairman, with Acting Irish Consul General Cornelius Howard, of the Boston Reception Committee for the visit of the Irish Champions.

In his proclamation, Collins recalls that the first Gaelic games seen in the United States were played on Boston Common in 1880 -- even before the G.A.A. was founded.

He adds: "The Gaelic Athletic Association of Ireland is the largest purely amateur association in the world and maintains a special place in Irish history because of its identity with the political and social life of the country."

Collins, Bretta and Crane urge a big turnout of citizens to hail the Irish champions and their American-based opponents.

The Down team has arrived in Boston and will be received by Mayor Collins at City Hall before leaving. Collins also plans to attend the game at Somerville, Sunday.

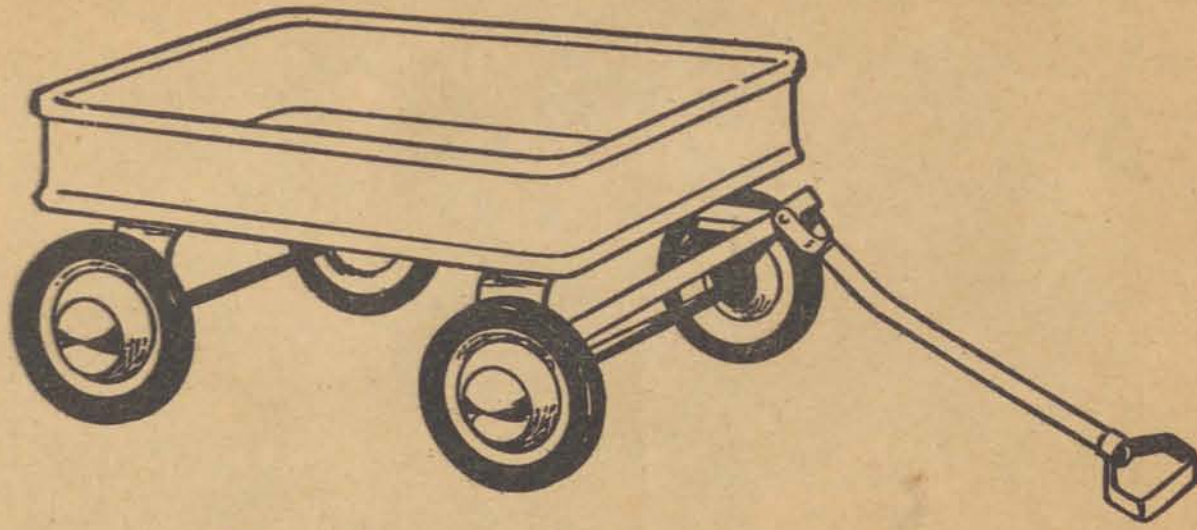

Present at the proclamation ceremony in the Boston City Hall yesterday were:

Cornelius Howard, Acting Consul General for Ireland; Humphrey Mahoney, president, Central Committee, Irish County Clubs; Edward B. Hamill, President of the Eire Society of Boston, and William Sullivan, President of the Boston Patriots.

DONKEYS CLIMB HOLY MOUNTAIN-HELP BUILD CHURCH

MEN build churches in cities, towns and villages. Hermit monks build churches in lonely places of contemplation. But in Mayo a new church wears a plume of cloud.

Since 1905 there has been a small oratory on the summit of Croagh Patrick. It was built by devoted men who carried the materials for its construction up the slopes of the 2,510-foot-high mountain.

Now this little church is to be doubled in size. Plans for the work, which will cost about $60,000 include the addition of a transept. The plans come from the drawing board of Mr. J. R. Boyd-Barrrett, Architect, Cork. The contractor is Mr. Austin Gannon, Levaney, Westport.

Any day now, if you are on the road that winds out of Westport along the edge of Clew Bay, you may see tiny figures moving slantwise along the skyline of Croagh Patrick.

At Murrisk you would be told that they are villagers who have begun the gruelling task of bringing up many tons of sand to the summit to enable construction to begin.

Leading six donkeys in two groups they began the first of their many ascents on Wednesday. On the back of each sure-footed animal there was a hundredweight of sand.

This was how the original oratory was built.

Sand and cement, timber and scaffolding will be brought to the top in the same laborious way. Water will be carried in drum-pans from a spring on the mountain side.

The men who transported the building materials walk the narrow path worn by the feet of pilgrim millions. Since July 30, 1905, when the little storm-swept oratory was dedicated by the Archbishop of Tuam, Most Rev. Dr. Healy, building methods have undergone a revolution, but nothing has changed on Croagh Patrick.

The feet of men and the hoofs of the animals will still slither in the sliding shale near the summit. The rugged knife-edged rocks that form lower sections of the pathway are as dangerous as ever.

For months before the original oratory was completed the contractor, Walter Hengnan of Louisburgh, lived as St. Patrick did once, on the summit in a cave. He came down every Sunday for Mass. The labourers made the ascent every day.

Two men who worked in their boyhood on the construction of the little church in the clouds are still alive. They are Mr. Joseph Heneghan, Postmaster at Louisburgh, son of the contractor, and Mr. Charles O'Malley, The Mall, Westport, who was an apprentice to the contractor.

For 57 years great storms sweeping in from the Atlantic have tugged at the little structure. Many times it has been outlined in blue flame as lightning struck. But the gallant little church has survived all the pressures of the elements.

In all Christendom there can scarcely be another church on such a magnificent site. To worship on the highest peak amid all the West's scenic magnificence is Ireland's tribute to the Saint who brought her the Faith. It is also an act of gratitude to God for the preservation of the Irish nation.

The Collins' edict was issued to hail the visit here of the Down All-Ireland Gaelic Football team which plays an all-star American selection of Gaelic kickers at Dilboy Stadium, Somerville, on Sunday next May 20.

On hand for the signing were from left to right: Daniel Doherty, Co-sponsor representing County Donegal and the Central Council of Irish County Clubs, Senator John Powers, Sponsor of the law, Mrs. Helen Doherty, sister of Hugh Farren, Dennis Doherty, husband of Mrs. Helen Doherty, Mrs. Mary McDevatt, County Donegal Clubs.

Second Row - left to right: Michael O'Donnell, President of the County Donegal Club, Humphrey J. Mahoney, Pres. of the C. C. of Irish Co. Clubs, Frank McDevatt, Treasurer County Donegal Club, Joseph McNamara, Representing the Firemen and Oilers' Union, Domenick S. Pascaucco, Representative Fourteenth Suffolk, John J. Mead, former manager, now retired, of the Old Harbor Village, John McColgan, County Donegal Club.

DUBLIN is to have another 200-room top-grade hotel on a 60-acre landscaped site at Santry Court, four miles from the city centre and two miles from the Airport. Mr. Conrad Hilton, President of Hilton Hotels International, New York, announced this last week.

Three stories high, it will have a restaurant, grill-room, bar and ballroom, and in the grounds there will be a lake and recreational facilities. It will be known as the Dublin Hilton.

Princess Investments Ltd., London, and Hilton Hotels International, with Irish investors, will form the Irish company to be known as Hilton of Ireland Ltd. The architects will be Raglan Squire, of London, and John E. Collins, of Dublin, assisted by the Architectural Department of Hilton Hotels International.

This will make the ninth Hilton hotel in Europe when it is completed in the Summer of 1964. At present in operation are hotels in Berlin, Istanbul, Madrid and under construction are hotels in London, Amsterdam, Rotterdam, Athens and Rome.

The Hilton organisation owns over 30 major hotels in the United States. Their chain stretches from Puerto Rico to Australia.

Mr. T. J. O'Driscoll, Director-General of the Irish Tourist Board said that negotiations between Hilton Hotels International and his Board had been going on for over a year.

The decision to build a Hilton hotel in Dublin meant that the Boards target for top-grade accommodation in Dublin had been met. The tourist industry, Mr. O'Driscoll added, stood to gain through the formidable publicity which the Hilton organisation could devote to selling space in the new hotel.

Mr. O'Driscoll said that the new hotel will be of the Hilton Inn type. It will not be a luxury hotel, but it will be of the same standard as the International Hotel, now under construction at Ballsbridge.

Drink And Tobacco Under Dail Survey

SMOKING, alcoholism and mental illness were discussed when the Dail Parliament resumed the debate on the estimate for the Department of Health.

Dr. N. C. Browne (N.P.D.), referring to the report of the British College of Physicians, said the Minister had been very off-hand in his approach to the treatment of the important matter of smoking and lung cancer. Arach more energetic campaign than that already in force to counteract smoking was necessary.

They could not ignore the influence that advertising had on smoking. The state radio, television and national papers were widely used to encourage people to smoke. It was time the Minister took counter action. In Italy, the acceptance of advertising for tobacco had been prohibited.

Mr. S. Collins (F.G.), appealed for a new approach towards educating the people about mental illnesses and said he was amazed that people had been allowed to languish and die in some of the larger mental institutions.

This was because we had not been able to educate people to approach mental illness with the view that they could be cured of it as well as any other disease.

Mr. F. Sherwin (Ind.) said there (Continued on page 4)

Why Did G.A.A. Divide? Here's A "Rebel's" Answer

A Letter To The Down Team via the Editor, Irish Herald

Dear Players and Followers, Welcome to our hupible and great city of Boston. Boston is honored by your presence this week-end in her proud surroundings. Surely it is a great privilege to have the "All-Ireland Champions," two years in a row to play over 6 on our fields.

Now in good faith and sincerity I must turn on "the sour grapes." When you men of Down live out today at Dilboy Stadium to meet an American League team, which should be pre-dominately Boston men, you will be playing "our second best."

In the stands on Sunday, will be men better fit to be your opponents for sixty minutes of football, but denied the right to meet you on the playing pitch, simply because they dared speak out against injustices committed by our G.A.A.

Permit me to give you the names of six men who should be meeting you in competition in what should be Boston's "finest hour of sports."

First, three men who hail from Kerry, the home of Gaelic Football." They are John Teehan, Joe Courtney and Sean Brosnan. The first and last were good enough to represent Kerry on the playing fields in Ireland, and all three good enough to travel to Ireland last year with New York's Kerry team, giving a five account of themselves over there in games.

Erin's Hope 0-9; St. Josephs 0-7; Inchicore Hibernians 0-4; Rialto Gaels 2-14; Kickhams 1-8.

Secondly, Tony Stack, Pat Meade, and Colin Jagan, these three men travelled to Ireland last year as members of New York's Cork team. Nobody will disagree with me that Tony Stack is simply the "number one player" in our Irish athletics, in Boston.

Why aren't they playing? It is because these men play with clubs that dared speak out against G.A.A. injustices here in Boston, which is controlled by two main clubs.

The last three named play with Erin's Hope and because they have no county name behind them they are "out-casts." Surely you men from "the gallant North" know what it is to be persecuted. Well right in our city, we have the same thing going on by members welcoming you to Boston this week.

All I can say to you is if these men had played what a game "it might have been."

Nevertheless, I trust, you enjoy your visit and meet the real G.A.A. FANS in Boston.

P.S. This letter is in answer to last week's ill-timed and very much ill-advised letter which appeared in last week's "Irish Herald." Let's have the truth; thank you for "the freedom of the press."

"THE STAR OF THE COUNTY DOWN"

Near Banbridge town in the County Down,
One morning last July,
Down a boreen green came a sweet colleen
And she smiled as she passed me by;
She looked so neat, from her two bare feet
To the sheen of her nut-brown hair;
Such a winsome elf, I was ashamed of myself
For to see I was really there . . .

Chorus:
From Bantry Bay up to Derry Quay
And from Galway to Dublin town,
No maid I've seen like the brown colleen
That I met in the County Down.

As she onward sped, sure I scratched my head,
And I looked with a feeling rare,
And I says, says I, to a passerby,
"Who's the maid with the nut brown hair?"
He smiled at me and he says to me,
"That's the gem of Ireland's crown,
Young Rosie McCann from the banks of the Bann,
She's the Star of the County Down"

At the harvest fair, she'll be surely there,
So I'll dress in my Sunday clothes,
With my shoes shined bright and my hat cocked right
For a smile from the nut-brown rose.
No pipe I'll smoke, no horse I'll yoke
Till my plough is a rust colored brown,
Till a-smiling bright by my own fireside
Is the Star of the County Down.

With a hearty welcome to the County Down team, All-Ireland Champions in Football, in their American tour.
-Joe Joyce, Irish Music Club of Greater Boston.

3 Mayors Declare May 20 Gaelic Day

In a unique tribute to Ireland and the Gaelic Athletic Association, three Massachusetts mayors have declared this Sunday, May 20, gaelic Football Day in honor of the big engagement at Dilboy Stadium, Somerville.

Mayor John Collins of Boston, Mayor Laurence Bretta of Somerville and Mayor Edward Crane of Cambridge, issued edicts for this purpose to mark the first visit to their territories of the present All-Ireland Gaelic football champions, Down.

Down will meet an all-star selection of Gaelic kickers from Boston and other American and Canadian cities at Dilboy on Sunday at 3 p.m.

The Down champions come to Boston with a new -- almost last-minute -- crown on their heads. Almost on the eve of their departure on Sunday last, they added the National League to their two All-Ireland wins.

The National League competition -- described as the winter All-Ireland -- comes second only to the blue riband senior football championship itself.

It was a typical Down victory in the League Final at Croke Park, Dublin, Trailing Dublin by two points with only minutes left in the game, they staged a storming finish, forced a penalty and rammed it home for a goal -- and a point win.

They come to Boston, therefore, as bearers of dual honors -- All Ireland championship and National League.

In their proclamations, the three Mayors pay tribute to the Gaelic Athletic Association which is sponsoring the sporting event at Somerville.

The association was formed in 1884 for the purpose of fostering native Irish pastimes -- football and hurling -- then threatened with extinction under the impact of British games.

Steak-Fed Irish Dogs For U.S.

A PRETTY young American travel agency assistant, Miss Emily Fortson, of Decatur, Georgia, has flown home from Shannon Airport after a week's visit with two unusual passengers occupying the first class compartments of a Lufthansa jet.

They were three-months-old Yorkshire terriers which she bought from Mrs. Margaret O'Toole, of Drumcondra, for $100.

The pint-sized pups were given V.I.P. treatment and head waiter Tom Bourke dined up a fillet steak for them before they left Shannon.

Then one of the fellow passengers offered Miss Fortson 100 dollars each for the pups - double what she had paid-but she would not part with them. Their names: O'Mara Paddy Shakes and Confederate Rebel.

Bridge Named After Hugh Farren

On May 1, 1962 Governor Volpe signed the law which made the Foot Bridge on Old Colony Avenue the Hugh Farren Memorial Bridge.

Hugh Farren was born at Malin Head, County Donegal in Ireland. He was an active member of the County Donegal Club and one time served as vice president of the organization. He was a delegate to the central council of Irish County Clubs.

When he enlisted in the United States Navy, and for many years before, he was employed as a fireman by the Old Harbor Village Housing Project in South Boston. He was an active member of the Firemen and Officers' Union.

Hugh Farren's sister, Mrs. Helen Doherty received from the Secretary of the United States Navy several communications and many communications also from the Naval Department, Bureau of Naval Personnel, Washington, D.C. These letters or communications express deep appreciation of the heroic service which Hugh Farren had rendered and also concerning medals of World War II made posthumously to Hugh Farren. He was well known, liked and respected as an industrious and intelligent, young Irishman.

He was serving on board the U.S.S. Liscome Bay, when that vessel was torpedoed while participating in the capture of the Gilbert Island November 24, 1943. Recently the Massachusetts Senate and House of Representatives have enacted a law and Governor John A. Volpe approved and signed this law naming the foot bridge crossing Old Colony Avenue in the vicinity of the Old Harbor Village Housing Project in South Boston as the Hugh Farren Memorial Foot Bridge.

The delegates and officers of the Central Council of Irish County Clubs in cooperation with the County Donegal Club were responsible for this worthy endeavor. Mr. John Mead, former manager of the Old Harbor Village, a loyal and faithful friend of Hugh Farren, was most helpful at all times. President of the Massachusetts Senate, John E. Powers did most of the work concerned with the bringing about of this legislation. We are very grateful for the service of everyone. (See picture on page 1)

Six-County Regime Name Election Day

It came as no surprise when Lord Brookeborough announced at Stormont that polling day in the Six-County general election would be Thursday, in the Six-County general election would be Thursday, May 31, with nomination day May 21.

The present Government overall majority is 20, including the Speaker and Deputy Speaker -- in the 5-seat House.

The Unionists hold 36 (including one vacant seat through the death of the Minister of Education, Mr. W. M. May); Nationalists 8, Six-County Labour 4, Liberal 1, Republican Labour 1, and Independent 1.

All members will seek re-election with the exception of Pros. Lloyd-Dodd, Unionist member for Queen's University.

The "Father of the House," 85 year-old Mr. Cahill Healy (Nat), will again stand for South Fermanagh.

More than 70 candidates have already been named and some more are expected.

The new Parliament will meet on June 20.

Unlike the last general election in March, 1958, when 25 Unionists and two Nationalists were returned unopposed there will be few seats this time which will not be contested.

The Nationalists expect to add one to their eight seats--in Mid-Tyrone, which a Unionist won on a split vote last time.

The Labour Party, who have hastened to make it clear that they recognize the present constitutional position, will have 14 candidates. Their big challenge will be in Belfast, where they "stole" four Unionist seats in the last election.

Lord Brookeborough has taken personal charge of the Unionist campaign in the city in an all-out effort to wrest back the four lost seats and fight off the challenge in the six other city divisions.

There are 12,532 more voters on the register than in the last election, boosting the total to 903,596.

It will be the first ever "television election". Seven ten-minute broadcasts on both B.B.C. and U.T.V. have been allocated for May 18 and May 28 in the proportion of four for the Unionists, two for the Nationalists and one for Labour. There will also be sound broadcasts.

The Labour Party will issue its manifesto at a Press conference today. The Unionists will hold their Press conference and issue their policy statement at headquarters tomorrow.
